

Zizz! Noise and colour

In the thick forest animals communicate by sound or with colourful markings. By day animals sing and whoop, birds flash colourful wings. At sunset, night animals take over; tree frogs call, insects sing, bats natter, jaguars moan . . .

The cock-of-the-rock adds colour to the forest floor.

eeeek!

The forest is a noisy place but I can tell who makes each sound.

Plip!

Frogs come in every colour of the rainbow. Even when you can't see them in the dark, you can hear them - they sing all night.

awk!

Huge macaws are LOUD in colour and voice!

ARKK!

CROAK!

Dacans' loud croaks can be heard almost a kilometre away through the trees.

Click!

Howler monkeys sit at the top of the canopy and make whooping noises to each other.

WAHH!
